

*Chief Commissioner's Office,
Lahore, 14th August, 1857.*

There is nothing further of importance from Delhi.

In the attack and capture of the guns outside the Cashmeree Gate on the morning of the 12th Instant, our casualties were more numerous than at first surmised—killed and wounded 112, and the following officers wounded: Lieutenant Sheriff, 2nd Fusiliers, dangerously; Brigadier Showers and Major Coke, severely; Lieut. Lindsay, Horse Artillery; Lieut. Maunsell, Engineers; Capt. Greville and Lieut. Ousir, 1st Fusiliers, and Lieut. Innes, 70th N. I., Orderly Officer to Brigadier Showers, slightly.

A copy of a letter dated Cawnpore 31st July has been received here. All well at that place. General Neill Commanding. Previous to their flight the Mutineers had blown up the Magazine at that place, but quantities of stores including gunpowder had been dug out from the mines.

General Havelock was expected to reach Lucknow that day. He had been very successful, having captured 20 guns on the first day of his first advance. No mention is made of any immediate advance of Troops to the North West.

General VanCortlandt's Force has arrived, and taken possession of Hansi.

The Native Troop of Horse Artillery at Mooltan has been disarmed, and its guns are now manned by Europeans.

A Meerut letter of the 10th Instant mentions that numbers of the Mutineers were leaving Delhi. A body of about 500 of them were seen crossing the Ganges at Gurmucktesir Ghat five days previously, and 250 more were seen at Haupper making for Rohilcund, all unarmed.

The Bridge of Boats at Delhi is reported broken on the Meerut side, and the Mutineers were attempting to repair it.

All is quiet in the Punjaub.
